Dessert Wines

Late Harvest & Ice Wine

Late harvest is a term applied to sweet wines made from grapes left on the vine longer than usual.

Botrytis or “noble rot” is a mold that causes grapes to lose nearly all of their water content giving them the appearance of raisins and therefore naturally concentrating the sugar inside of the grape.

Ice wine (Eiswein) is a type of dessert wine produced from grapes that have been frozen while still on the vine. The sugars and other dissolved solids do not freeze, but the water does, so the result is a concentrated, often very sweet wine.

A fortified wine is a wine to which additional alcohol has been added, the most common additive being brandy (a spirit distilled from wine). The original reason for fortification was to preserve wines, as the higher alcohol level and additional sweetness help to preserve the wine.
